Getting to the AXA office

By train

Bristol has two main stations - Parkway and Temple Meads. The office is within 15 minutes' walk of Bristol Temple Meads however we would recommend a taxi which are readily available at the station for first time visitors. Parkway is further out of the city centre and a taxi is a necessity for anyone arriving here rather than Temple Meads. The road, and building, will be a well-known landmark to the city's taxi community.

By car

Approach Bristol via the M32, continue to the end of the motorway passing the sign announcing 'End of Motorway' (approx. 4 miles from M4). Move into right-hand lane as you go through the traffic lights and bear right (you will see McDonalds on your left). Spectrum is now on your right (glass-fronted building) across the dual carriageway. Proceed to the roundabout (Stokes Croft/St James Barton) and go all the way round so that you are now travelling back along the dual carriageway. The nearest NCP car park is now immediately on your left and Spectrum is a further 200 yards along on your left.

Parking

There is a limited number of parking spaces available but must be booked in advance. Access to the underground car park is gained via Gloucester Street.

Bike racks are also available within the underground car park.
